French Broad River Park and beyond...

Swimming Hole for Dogs
9x12 on color paper

After visiting the dog park which I considered sketching, I walked over to the river and started sketching but found that's where the dog owners took their dogs swimming, reminded me when I had my dog who wouldn't pass up a swim ... sketch is unfinished I wanted to add more dogs...

Here's the photo of the spot. I take it just for back up if I ever need it to check light or a detail. But I didn't refer to it. Just for you to see the view.

I'm in Maine, but still got out to do some plein air painting. It had been a bit of a rough day so I went to the ocean to sit and journal and sketch. Finally a small painting. I felt so much better afterward! This is Kettle Cove just outside Portland as the tide was going out. The color of the water was interesting as it was different in each area. Nearby it had seaweed floating on top so there was layering of some interesting colors. The dark blue/grey paper was an element in the composition and really helped unite the painting.
